THE CHALLENGE

A Paper Mountain

The processing of a job involves input and paperwork from various departments' i.e. construction drawings, colour visuals, quotations etc; each stage of the process creates large quantities of paper and various revisions before it reaches the manufacturing process.

"Before Invu we had to sort out all our paperwork manually and create a Job Bag for each order. This would contain all the information relevant to the job but we often had the situation where it did not contain the correct information and we would have to hunt around the office for it."

Andrea Kelman Office Manager

They knew there were major problems, both with the document management and manufacturing processes. A decision was made that the paper trail problems had to be resolved before any manufacturing package was put in to place. They looked at several systems before choosing Invu.

"We were recommended Invu by word of mouth. It seemed the best choice for us as we could manage part of our manufacturing process through Invu's workflow module and we had all the benefits of any easy to use and affordable document management system."

• Advice industry.

• THE BENEFITS

• Instant Access to Information

• *"Using Invu has helped us a lot. Whatever information comes in goes straight
• into Invu where it is easily accessible by all. It's so easy to find stuff. Now
• when clients ring in with a query we don't have to ring them back later with a
• response. We have the information to hand and can answer the entire query
• immediately."*

• *"Another area it has helped us in the processing of Sales invoices. Before
• Invu we were often one month behind when invoicing and jobs were missed
• and dropped in to the following month. We are now signing off invoicing by
• the 10th of the month, due to information being available and missed jobs
• are now at a minimum. Financially it has helped us immensely."*
